RECOGNITION BY OFFICIALS.

TONOPAH may well feel complimented by the visit today by the vice-president and other high officials of the Southern Pacific company. The increased mining the company is receiving in and from this city is what prompted the visit, it being rare that an official trip is made over lines not owned or controlled by the company.

Mr. McNamee feels very kindly toward Tonopah, in view of the business, both passenger and freight, which this camp affords his road and he expresses congratulations to those who are reaping the benefits due for their investments and efforts here.

TUNGSTEN IN HEAVY DEMAND.

At the outbreak of the European war the American tungsten market was very dull and prices very low, about $6 to $6.50 per unit. The ore mined in Burma, Australia, and other countries came into competition with the American ore, and the result was that there were many undveloped and unworked properties, says the Arizona State Survey of Mines.

The most common use for tungsten is for high speed steels, and the demand increases or decreases with the steel market. It is also used to a slight extent for incandescent electric filaments, electric contact wire, and for dental work. When the orders for strengthened shell and other war munitions came, the demand for high speed steels rapidly increased. The embargo placed by Great Britain on tungsten does cut off Burma and Australian supplies. Following this the price rose rapidly, until $55 and more per unit has been paid for ore containing 60 per cent and over of tungsten trioxide. The small quantity of ore that has come from Japan, Peru and Bolivia, has not been large enough to disrupt the market.

As with anything the uses of tungsten have been sounding the country for these uses, and trying to purchase tungsten mines, and although the price for ore is largely a matter of individual bargaining, the prospector has fared well.

GAZETTE'S COMMENT MISLEADING.

"THE Bonanza is a vigorous champion of Tonopah, which is proper," says the Gazette in commenting upon this paper's attitude relative to the recent "unfortunate" championship basketball game at Reno. This is a very pleasant introduction to a less desirable comment, one that inferentially declares that it is simply the Bonanza and not the entire town of Tonopah together with the greater number of the people of Reno that consider the girls from here good, as one telegram stated, "a roses deal."

No, Dave, it wasn't Reno's fault. The blame was due to a graduate of the Reno high school being permitted to referee the game and the board of athletic control not calling off the contest and either awarding it to Tonopah or having it played over. Tonopah might not have accepted the game under the former condition, but it certainly would have been willing to meet the Reno team again.

The Bonanza has seen many letters and telegrams that have been exchanged since the "regrettable" occurrence and has talked with Reno people who saw the game. Every bit of testimony points to the fact that a wrong was committed and those responsible, not meaning the people of Reno, but Reno itself, the school and the board of control, should have required without even waiting for the storm of protest that has arisen.

By the way, the business men of Reno showed both fairness and liberality in offering a silver cup to the visitors in case the game were to have been played over, but now such a concession of the "unfortunate" affair is practically out of the question, and as far as the treatment of the Tonopah visitors by the people of Reno, and particularly the university, is concerned; it was whole-hearted and honorable. The editor of the Bonanza has a host of loyal friends in Reno, and he would not wish to have it inferred that he cast an affront upon any of the good people of the metropolis.

DEMOCRATS FORMALLY BACK DOWN.

FACE to face with the results of their folly in undertaking to carry out the free trade theories to which their party has been wedded, the Democratic leaders in Congress have executed an about-face movement on the tariff. They now announce they will not only retain the duty on sugar, but will raise the duty on other articles, for the purpose of replenishing the exchequer they have depleted by their recklessness in spending money without regard to revenue. They have been forced by experience to tacitly admit the blunder of their efforts to "reform" the revenue laws, especially the tariff, and face the people now with an admission of the futility of the experiment they tried.

Thus comes to an end the second attempt within the last fifty years to put into practice the theory of "tariff for revenue only," which means free trade. In both cases the result has been the same, disaster for the country. It is most convincing proof of the utter incapacity of the Democratic party in congress to deal with the real problems of government. Its senseless attacks on the commerce and industry of the country lead only to wreck and ruin, and now, with a vanished surplus, a growing deficit, and a steadily dwindling cash balance, it faces about and proposes to restore the prosperity it wrecked by renewing the machinery it destroyed. Two years ago the Underwood tariff was framed with utter disregard of the recommendations of the tariff commission and that commission itself was abolished by the Democrats. Today, the Underwood tariff is to be amended, and the commission is to be restored. But the damage is already done, the cash box is empty, and the responsibility rests solely on the president and his counsellors.

The Republican party, on the other hand, stands pledged as it always has, to tariff reform along lines that are economically sound, and the restoration of the non-partisan tariff commission. Under this policy the country prospered once, and will prosper again.

A Carson City corporation will manufacture the siesta chair. They won't be half so good for whittling as the old benches that once adorned the sidewalk in front of the Arlington hotel, Rosenbrook's, the county building and other structures conveniently spaced for brief excursions to and from sites, but they may prove more comfortable. Undoubtedly the members of a number of the state commissions already have their orders in.

STAGE IS ATTACKED

BY MAD STEER

Stanley Wines, who is driving the Wells-Riley stage between this place and Lurline, reports a rather exciting experience a few days ago, says the Wells Herald. While driving slowly along the heavy road his attention was called to the actions of a steer that was behaving in a very strange manner. When the animal noticed the stage it made directly for the outfit and despite the efforts of Mr. Wines to urge his team out of reach, the steer overtook the stage and spent some time making attacks upon and hooking the wagon. Strange to relate however, the mad animal did not attack the horses, and after a short time Mr. Wines succeeded in shodding the steer, no damage being done. Mr. Wines states that he does not wish to repeat the experience. He was unarmed and the horses attached to the stage would have been at the mercy of the animal had it attacked them. Mr. Wines states that he is satisfied that the animal was rabid.

WILL START WORK APRIL 1

ON AULD LANG SYNE

W. J. Merrifield and George Kruenewer will begin work April 1 on their lease on the Auld Lang Syne mine at Dan Gile. This mine has a record production of $600,000, but has been idle for many years, with the result that the workings have been caved in to a considerable extent. The first work will be to clean out the mine. The property is owned by E. Reinhardt company, Silver State.
